GRANT SUPPORT:*A. Principal Investigator

1. NICHD, National Institute of Health, Advancing measurement and analysis of sensitive behaviors in the United States, R01HD084473, 2016-2022, $2,079,000
 Abortion underreporting is pervasive and comprises fertility-related research. This project aims to develop new approaches for measuring abortion in surveys. I lead an eight-person research team engaged in analysis of secondary survey data, qualitative research, and the design and analysis of an experimental survey to devise and test new question designs for measuring abortion
2. The JPB Foundation, Impact of COVID-19 on Sexual and Reproductive Health, 2021-2023, $57,435
 This grant provides supplemental funding to analyze data collected as part of grant R01HD084473 and publish as a “rapid response” report to study the impact of COVID-19 on women’s fertility preferences and access to contraceptive and other sexual and reproductive health care.
3. Anonymous Donor, Adolescent Sexual and Reproductive Health, 2017-2020. $563,819
 This project provides surveillance of adolescent sexual and reproductive health behaviors and outcomes, using national and state data. This grant is from the largest private funder in the area of sexual and reproductive health that asks to remain anonymous.
4. The JPB Foundation, Confidentiality concerns, socioeconomic status and adolescents’ use of reproductive health care, 2016-2019. $284,545
 This was one of two joint grants from the JPB Foundation to fund a robust program of research on adolescent sexual and reproductive health. I led research focused on how socioeconomic disadvantage influences adolescent sexual and reproductive health behaviors and outcomes using national, state, and metropolitan level data, focusing on experiences of young males.
5. The JPB Foundation, Two Americas for teens: The role of disadvantage in adolescent sexual and reproductive health, 2016-2019, $305,411
 This was the second of two joint grants from the JPB Foundation to fund a robust program of research on adolescent sexual and reproductive health.
6. The JPB Foundation, Cross-sectional survey on contraceptive coverage, 2015-2017, $205,198
 The purpose of this grant was to examine the impact of the contraceptive coverage mandate in the ACA on women’s access to and use of contraception.

7. HRSA, Maternal and Child Health Bureau, The Impact of Pregnancy Intentions on Early Childhood Health, 2013-2015. $99,936
The purpose of this grant was to examine the effect of pregnancy intention status on early childhood outcomes using representative longitudinal data linking maternal reports of pregnancy intentions to early childhood health and well-being measures.
8. National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy, New estimates of pregnancy intentions. 2011-2012, $69,017
This grant aimed to evaluate the development and use of new measures of women's pregnancy intentions.
9. Annie E. Casey Foundation, Document Teen Pregnancy at the State and National Levels, 2009-2010, $30,000
The goal of this project was to improve adolescent sexual and reproductive health in the United States by documenting and disseminating new policy-relevant scientific information.
10. Educational Foundation of America, Monitoring the Recession, 2009-2011, $50,000
The purpose of this grant was to design, field and analyze a survey to investigate the impact of the Great Recession on women's fertility intentions and access to contraceptive services.
11. The Wallace Alexander Gerbode Foundation, Health behaviors of women in the military, 2009-2010, $75,000
This grant aimed to estimate the rate of unintended pregnancy among women in the US military and variation by socio-demographics and across service branches.
12. Office of Population Affairs, HHS: Couples based family planning services, 2007-2010, $426,294
The purpose of this grant was to examine the potential for Title X family planning clinics to offer couples-oriented services to women and their partners to foster joint decision-making around contraceptive use. This was a competitive peer-reviewed grant, awarded through the Family Planning Service Delivery Improvement Research Grants program.
13. Ford Foundation, Improving adolescent sexual and reproductive health, 2005-2006, $425,000
This project had two objectives focused on improving adolescent sexual and reproductive health: examine the sexual and reproductive health needs of adolescent men; assess community and faith-based provision of sex education in the U.S.
14. Office of the Assistant Secretary of Planning and Evaluation, HHS, Follow-up to clustering of risk behaviors among youth, 1999-2001*
15. Office of the Assistant Secretary of Planning and Evaluation, HHS, Clustering of risk behaviors among youth, 1998-1999*
These two contracts were awarded to develop and implement models to measure the clustering of health risk behaviors among high school students in the United States.

B. Co-Investigator

1. NICHD, National Institute of Health Improving methods and measures of reproductive health outcomes, R01HD092396. 2018-2023, $2,036,559
This project aims to update and improve the quality of contraceptive failure rate estimates and advance understanding of factors that contribute to differential experiences with contraceptive failure.
2. NICHD, National Institutes of Health, Guttmacher Center for Population Research Innovation and Dissemination, R24HD074034-01A1, 2013-2018, $96,867
I contributed to the development of this grant to create a research center focused on sexual and reproductive health within the Guttmacher Institute. Funds were used for core functions including supporting staff in further NIH grant development.

3. Guttmacher Institute Supplementary Funds Population Center Grant-Guttmacher Support, 2012-2018, $178,178

In recognition of the value and prestige of having an NIH funded research center, the Guttmacher Institute co-funded this effort with money from its endowment.

4. Anonymous Donor. US Surveillance, Unintended pregnancy at the state level, 2013 and 2016, 2014-2017, $167,763

This project estimated trends in unintended pregnancy at the state level. My effort focused on developing a new metric for monitoring unintended pregnancy that can be calculated with greater frequency and at lower cost than the conventional measure. This grant is from the largest private funder in the area of sexual and reproductive health that asks to remain anonymous.

5. Anonymous Donor. US surveillance, National and state estimates of teen pregnancy, 2014-2017, $839,521

This project estimated trends in adolescent pregnancy at the national and state level. My effort forced on identifying the behavioral drivers of the decline in teen pregnancy. This grant is from the largest private funder in the area of sexual and reproductive health that asks to remain anonymous.

6. The JPB Foundation, Identifying pathways to improve contraceptive use: A longitudinal study, 2012-2015, $1,423,522

This large grant funded the design, fielding and analysis of a nationally representative longitudinal survey on women's contraceptive use patterns.

7. NICHD, National Institutes of Health, Advancing research on the consequences of unintended childbearing, R01HD068433-02, 2011-2015, $965,622

This project aimed to use innovative statistical methods to examine the consequences of unintended childbearing on women, men and their children, including a focus on maternal health behaviors, infant health, and union stability and well-being.

8. Anonymous Donor, An evidence base for action: Tracking the state of the nation's reproductive health, 2011-2014, $211,031

The purpose of this grant is to track state sexual and reproductive health policies across a range of domains. My component focused on adolescent-related policies, including parental consent laws. This grant is from the largest private funder in the area of sexual and reproductive health that asks to remain anonymous.

9. NICHD, National Institutes of Health, Measuring and explaining unintended pregnancy in the United States, 1987- 2009, R01HD059896, 2009-2014, $1,187,783

This five-year grant sought to explain the reduction of unintended pregnancy in the United States through improved measurement of trends, decomposition of component drivers and variations across key subpopulations.

10. Office of Population Affairs, HHS, Meeting 21st century family planning challenges with an evidence-based approach, 2009-2014, $2,480,093

The purpose of this grant was to provide core information and analyses that program planners and providers can use to improve the delivery of quality family planning services, and through this, to increase the success with which U.S. women and their partners prevent unplanned pregnancies. This was a competitive peer-reviewed grant, awarded through the Family Planning Service Delivery Improvement Research Grants program.

11. California Wellness Foundation, Co-Investigator: Advancing the Sexual and Reproductive Health of America's Teens: Moving Rapidly to Generate and Deploy Policy-Relevant Evidence, 2010-2012. $200,000

The goal of this project was to improve adolescent sexual and reproductive health in the United States by documenting and disseminating new policy-relevant scientific information.

12. National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy. Assessing reproductive & contraceptive knowledge and beliefs among unmarried young adult, 2006-2009. $559,201

The National Campaign competitively provided funds from the Ford Foundation for the design, fielding and analysis of a national survey of young adults.

13. Office of Population Affairs, HHS, Family planning needs and services in the United States, 2004-2009, $265,856

The purpose of this grant was to provide core information and analyses that program planners and providers can use to improve the delivery of quality family planning services, and through this, to increase the success with which U.S. women and their partners prevent unplanned pregnancies. My work included estimating the numbers and characteristics of women at risk for STDs, and the provision of family planning clinic services for adolescents and for men.

14. Hewlett Foundation, Validating and extending the pregnancy risk index, 2007-2008, $26,718

This project was funded to investigate the utility of Lindberg and Santelli's pregnancy risk index methodology to evaluate the impact of behavioral changes, since as increasing use of long-acting reversible contraception.

15. National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, NIH, Longitudinal patterns of young men's AIDS risk behaviors, R01-HD036948, 1999-2003*

The purpose of this five-year project was to study longitudinal factors associated with changes in risk behaviors related to transmission of HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases among young males in the United States.

16. The Charles Stewart Mott Foundation, Sex education among American males, 1997-2001*

The purpose of this project was to estimate national-level patterns in the adolescents' receipt of formal sex education about delaying sex, contraception, and prevention of HIV/STDs.

16. Office of Population Affairs, HHS, Reproductive health outreach to young males 1997-1999*

This project was funded to develop a guide for program planners on involving males in preventing teen pregnancy, drawing on quantitative data analysis and qualitative interviews with existing programs.

18. National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, NIH, Prevalence and determinants of sexually transmitted diseases among young males, R01-HD30861, 1996-1999*

The purpose of this five-year project was to study the prevalence and determinants of sexually transmitted diseases among young males in the United States, with a focus on sexual behavior and condom use.

*These grants were obtained while I was a researcher at the Urban Institute. I was required to fully fund my time with external research grants and contracts. Details on the size of these grants are no longer available.
