Graduates of CEPH-accredited schools and programs of public health may transfer up to six (6) credits towards a certificate program if earned within the past seven years with a grade of B or better and are deemed appropriate by the respective Certificate Program Coordinator.

The Population Aging Certificate is Intended for:
- Public health students in disciplines other than population aging;
- Professionals who plan to work or are already working in the health and helping professions (e.g., counselors, dentists, hospital administrators, nurses, nutritionists, occupational therapists, speech therapists, pharmacists, physical therapists, physicians, psychologists, social workers, etc.); and
- Those who are interested in human rights, social justice, advocacy, equity, policy, and the law.

Program Design
You can complete the Population Aging Certificate in two-three semesters or you can plan a schedule for completing the courses over a two-year period (maximum timeframe). The late afternoon/evening schedule and online course offerings makes it convenient to continue working or gain experience while earning your Population Aging Certificate. The Certificate courses may also be applied toward a degree at the Rutgers School of Public Health depending on the degree program and concentration. (Certificate holders must apply and be admitted to the degree program.)

Cost
Tuition is governed by Rutgers University and is subject to change annually. Visit sph.rutgers.edu/admissions to confirm current tuition rates and fees.
