The Population Health Certificate is Intended for:

- Those who work in public health, but who have never had any formal public health training;
- Those interested in a career in public health and expecting to use these credits towards a MPH degree; and
- Those with or pursuing advanced degrees in related areas (such as medicine, biomedical sciences, nursing, and psychology) who wish to enhance their professional knowledge of core public health concepts.

Program Design

You can complete the Population Health Certificate in two-three semesters or you can plan a schedule for completing the courses over a two-year period (maximum timeframe.) The late afternoon/evening schedule and online course offerings make it convenient to continue working or gain experience while earning your Population Health Certificate.

Cost

Tuition is governed by Rutgers University and is subject to change annually. Please visit sph.rutgers.edu/admissions to confirm current tuition rates and fees.

Graduates of CEPH-accredited schools and programs of public health may transfer up to six (6) credits towards a certificate program if earned within the past seven years with a grade of B or better and are deemed appropriate by the respective Certificate Program Coordinator.
