Course Description: This course will focus on selected topics related to the performance and structure of health care systems and the possible policy responses to address perceived shortcomings in health system performance.

Selected Department Competencies Addressed:

Each Department identifies competencies for each degree offered. The competencies addressed in this course for the MPH for the Department of Health Systems and Policy include:

- Use economic theories, concepts and methodologies in the analysis and evaluation of current health care issues and problems
- Assess community health needs, disparities and the health care delivery system within the context of social, cultural, political, legal and economic forces

Please visit the Department webpages on the School of Public Health's website at http://sph.rutgers.edu/ for additional competencies addressed by this course for other degrees and departments.

Course Objectives: By the completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Identify important contemporary areas of concern in health systems and health policy
- Critically evaluate the literature and evidence related to the performance of health care systems and health policy
- Apply analytic principles to determine the effects on the performance of health care systems of both private, market-based solutions and public, government-based solutions for improving the delivery of health care
Course Requirements and Grading:

The course will have a midterm and a final examination. Students are expected to read all assignments prior to class and to actively participate in discussions of assigned readings. Students are expected to attend class and to comply with the Rutgers School of Public Health honor code.

Final course grades will be assessed on the following basis:

- Midterm Exam 40 percent of grade

School of Public Health Honor Code: The School of Public Health Honor Code is found in the student bulletin (sph.rutgers.edu/academics/catalog/index.html). Each student bears a fundamental responsibility for maintaining academic integrity and intellectual honesty in his or her graduate work. For example, all students are expected to observe the generally accepted principles of scholarly work, to submit their own rather than another’s work, to refrain from falsifying data, and to refrain from receiving and/or giving aid on examinations or other assigned work requiring independent effort. In submitting written material, the writer takes full responsibility for the work as a whole and implies that, except as properly noted by use of quotation marks, footnotes, etc., both the ideas and the works used are his or her own. In addition to maintaining personal academic integrity, each student is expected to contribute to the academic integrity of the school community by not facilitating inappropriate use of her/his own work by others and by reporting acts of academic dishonesty by others to an appropriate school authority. It should be clearly understood that plagiarism, cheating, or other forms of academic dishonesty will not be tolerated and can lead to sanctions up to and including separation from the Rutgers School of Public Health.

Policy Concerning Use of Recording Devices and Other Electronic Communications Systems: When personally owned communication/recording devices are used by students to record lectures and/or classroom lessons, such use must be authorized by the faculty member or instructor who must give either oral or written permission prior to the start of the semester and identify restrictions, if any, on the use of mobile communications or recording devices.
